

15. Having Fun through Dramatic Reading for Children and Adults

Presenter: George T. Parsons, Tutor/Teacher, National City Library

“We can learn to read better while having fun! Ted Parsons will share insights from years of experience on how to select children’s books for home or the classroom. He will demonstrate dramatic reading. Then the participants will read dramatically with each other using specially selected books. Finally, we will share our successes and lessons learned. And he plans a surprise for each participant.”

Bio: Mr. Parsons is a national conference presenter. Some presentation topics have included literacy, reading, and writing. He also presents at state and local conferences. Ted has been a tutor for small groups at the National City Library for over eight years. In addition, he teaches children from first grade through high school at a learning center. Ted has taught family literacy for about eight years as well. Teaching adults how to have fun while reading to children is one of his favorite pastimes.”
